Tours every Wednesday

Wednesdays at 7pm

Dún Laoghaire (previously Kingstown) was probably the most desirable place in all of Ireland in the early part of the 20th century. It had wonderful amenities by way of shopping, recreation, housing, as well as access to Dublin and London. But behind the façades it had some dirty secrets of widespread concealed grinding poverty, disease and deprivation.

In the 20 years before 1916, the town saw major physical changes in terms of its buildings, streets and homes, as well as socially attempting to create a better community. This walk will visit the locations of the best and the worst features of the town in that period, and will use those to explain the background to some of the positions taken in 1916 and subsequent years.

MONKSTOWN PARISH CHURCH

Open every Saturday
from 2pm – 5pm
One event per week
No booking required

This unusual church, largely the work of John Semple & Son, opened on Christmas Day 1831 to almost universal criticism. The Dublin Penny Journal of 1834 claimed that there was not “a spot in the church where the eye can rest without pain” whereas, over 100 years later, we find it the favourite church of Sir John Betjeman, who described it as “a cheerful Irish castle with a seaside rather than a fortress flavour”.

There'll be something for everyone—treasure hunts for kids, self-guided tours and quizzes for adults, information on church monuments, windows, the organ, display of church archives, WWI memorabilia, photos of children who attended Monkstown Parish School, displays on the Hall School and Monkstown Hospital, the fascinating Goff diaries (1796–1844), and much, much more! Come and see for yourself!

The German/Dutch name for his instrument is the “Zink” so Conor has christened the group “Kitchen Zink”...

SUNDAY SEPTEMBER 11TH AT 7.30PM: Navarra Quartet

It is a great opportunity to listen to this great quartet and then add the young Irish pianist, Michael McHale, who is taking the piano world by storm both here and worldwide.

The cellist of the quartet, Brian O'Kane, a young musician also making a great career, joins him for the Saint-Saëns. Our festival closes with the beautiful Trout Quintet, for which they are joined by our local Double Bass soloist Malachy Robinson.

dlr Lexlcon

dlr Lexlcon is the centrepiece of a new public space in Moran Park. It houses a public library—a key community space where all are welcome, the municipal gallery, the Studio theatre space, extensive exhibition and performance spaces, a local history level and meeting rooms. There are 100 study spaces, 60+ computers for public use and 80,000 items in the adult and junior libraries. The building is fully accessible to people with disabilities and Brambles Café is situated on the Moran Park Level. The What's On guide is produced quarterly and is available at the Lexlcon, all dlr branch libraries and online via the website. The website gives library members access to services, resources and subscription websites, even when the library is closed.
